

3 GOOD AND 3 BAD QUALITIES OF AN ARROGANT PERSON

— Suresh Mohan Semwal

Arrogant is an adjective for describing people who are too proud and look down on others, like super successful celebrities who think their good looks or subscribers/followers' numbers give them a right to do whatever they want. Arrogant derives from Latin arrogare "to claim," and the idea is that someone is claiming credit or advantages that they are not entitled to.

While we may not want to be arrogant yet if we look deeply, we might find traces of arrogance in self too. At times it also seems to serve a great deal in living with social environment.

While arrogance is generally seen as a negative trait, some argue that it also does some good too and is useful to lead a successful life.

Three such positive qualities of an arrogant person are:

Strong Self-Confidence:

Arrogant individuals often have a high belief in their abilities and judgment, which can lead to taking initiative and making bold decisions.

Resilience:

They may be less easily discouraged by criticism or setbacks, viewing them as challenges to overcome rather than failures.

Assertiveness:

Arrogant people can be persuasive and forceful in their interactions, which can be effective in achieving goals or standing up for their beliefs.

Three such negative qualities of an arrogant person are:

Lack of Empathy:

Arrogant individuals often struggle to understand or acknowledge the feelings and perspectives of others, leading to strained relationships and a lack of connection.

Dismissal of Others' Opinions:

They tend to belittle or disregard the contributions and ideas of others, viewing their own perspective as superior and refusing to listen to alternative viewpoints.

Excessive Bragging or Boasting:

Arrogant people often exaggerate their abilities, achievements, or knowledge to assert dominance over others, creating an environment of insecurity and resentment.

You will be surprised to note that arrogant people are very good helpers (for those whom they like) and very reluctant to ask for help. Arrogant people are very good contributors and very bad losers.
